

Dr. Ryan Bookstaff: After completing his internship at Angell, Dr. Bookstaff moved to Chicago, where he worked as an emergency veterinarian for three years. He then transitioned into general practice, where he honed his skills over the next seven years. Recently, he made an exciting leap into industry, accepting a role as a Professional Services Veterinarian with Dechra. Dr. Bookstaff is energized by the new challenges and opportunities this career shift brings and looks forward to shaping the future of veterinary medicine from a new perspective.

Dr. Stephen Cai: Dr. Cai fondly remembers his time at Angell, crediting the experience as a pivotal step toward his internal medicine residency at the University of Pennsylvania. He now practices at Mount Laurel Animal Hospital, where he thrives in a collaborative and compassionate environment. Stephen splits his time between work, family visits to Quincy, MA, and traveling to places like Sedona, Barcelona, and Provincetown. When he's not exploring, he enjoys reading, running, yoga, tennis, and beach days. He currently calls Philadelphia home, but hasn't ruled out a future move to New York City.

Dr. Chelsea del Alcazar

Dr. Chelsea del Alcazar: Following her internship at Angell, Dr. del Alcazar pursued a residency in veterinary medical oncology at the University of Pennsylvania, where she trained alongside fellow Angell '16 alumni Drs. Stephen Cai and Cara Steele. Dr. del Alcazar currently works as a veterinary oncologist at Friendship Hospital for Animals, and lives in Washington, DC, with her wife and their beloved cats.

Dr. Gerard Ferrick: After completing his small animal medicine and surgery internship at Angell, Dr. Ferrick worked as an ER veterinarian in Seattle for a few years before returning to the Northeast as a general practitioner. As medical director at Thrive Pet Healthcare in Natick, MA, he is passionate about teaching, mentoring veterinarians, and assisting with technician training and process. Dr. Ferrick is Fear Free certified, and his interests include preventative care, behavioral management, and geriatric medicine. Outside of the hospital, he enjoys reading, cheering on the Huskies and Wolfpack, traveling with his family, being a supportive dad, and conquering the National Parks.

Dr. Tara Herold-Eichhorn: After completing her internship at Angell, Dr. Herold-Eichhorn began her career in general practice at VCA Hanson. In 2018, she and her husband relocated to Minnesota with their two cats, Albus and Ezio, to be closer to family in the Dakotas. They bought a home in Minneapolis in 2020, and Dr. Herold-Eichhorn now serves as the Medical Director at Edina Animal Hospital under Lakefield Veterinary Group. When she's not caring for patients, she enjoys knitting or gaming with one of her now 12-year-old cats curled up beside her.

Dr. Audrey Keebaugh: Dr. Keebaugh is currently an assistant professor and service chief of small animal internal medicine at the Virginia-Maryland College of Veterinary Medicine. She met her husband, Dr. Giulio Menciotti, during her residency there, and both stayed on as faculty members after completing their training. Audrey and Giulio are proud parents to their daughter, Francesca, and are eagerly awaiting the arrival of their son, Leonardo, who is due in July.

Dr. Audrey Keebaugh

Dr. Caitlin Koziel: Dr. Koziel and her husband Gerard are happily married and living in MetroWest Massachusetts, where they're raising their two wonderful kids.

Dr. Caitlin Koziel

Dr. Barbara Linnehan: Dr. Linnehan is returning to the MSPCA-Angell in July 2025 to complete her cardiology residency.

Dr. Barbara Linnehan

Dr. Evan Mariotti: Dr. Mariotti is a board-certified internal medicine specialist at the MSPCA-Angell, earning his certification in 2019. He later completed advanced training in I-131 therapy for hyperthyroid cats and is an active member of the hospital's I-131 treatment team. Outside of work, he enjoys spending time with his wife, daughter, two cats, and dog.

Dr. William Marscher: After completing his internship at Angell, Dr. Marscher continued practicing in New England until returning to Charleston, SC. Since moving back, he practiced emergency medicine in the Charleston community and continued to develop his skills and acumen in the field. Dr. Marscher currently works at PawMed Veterinary Urgent Care in Charleston.

Dr. Hannah Marshall: Hannah spent her first three years after her internship at Angell completing her ECC residency before moving across the country to Portland, OR, to work at DoveLewis, where she has stayed. She is the program director for the Rotating Internship and ECC Residency at the hospital, as well as the Medical Chair on the Board of Directors for a local free veterinary clinic known as PAW Team, where she volunteers. In her free time, she can be found doing long-distance cycling — including traverses across the Olympic Peninsula and the entire state of Oregon, rock climbing, or mountaineering, and has summited Mt. Hood, Baker, Adams, Helens, and Rainier. Her Angell pets — Daisy and Astro — are living their best life in the PNW, with another cat named Fred from DoveLewis, who joined the family along the way.

Dr. Meredith Montgomery: It's been a busy decade for Dr. Montgomery! She spent three years in Asheville, NC, with the ASPCA, teaching and performing high-quality, high-volume spay/neuter surgeries — up to 30,000 annually — while working with both shelter and owned pets. During that time, she married her husband Rob (they survived vet school and Angell together!) and welcomed their son Owen. Family needs brought them back to North Florida, where Dr. Montgomery worked as a shelter vet and taught shelter medicine at the University of Florida. In 2020, her daughter Remi was born — her spirited personality matching the chaos of the pandemic. Dr. Montgomery now works in a locally-owned, four-doctor private practice and still does relief spay/neuter work to stay connected to shelter medicine. Their beloved cat Max (adopted from the MSPCA during her internship) is still going strong. He looks exactly the same, leading Dr. Montgomery to believe he may be some sort of immortal cat vampire.

Dr. Meredith Montgomery

Dr. Patrick Satchell: After completing his internship at Angell, Dr. Satchell accidentally launched into a three-year ECC residency. He spent five years in private practice in Austin, TX (at the same clinic as fellow Angell alum Roxanna!), before deciding to change things up. Last year, he moved to Cincinnati to join the team at MedVet. When he's not at work, you'll likely find Dr. Satchell abroad; he's been traveling extensively and is writing this bio from Tokyo, en route to Taipei.

Dr. Patrick Satchell

Dr. Susan Smith: After finishing her internship at Angell, Dr. Smith went on to pursue a clinical pathology residency and earned her PhD in Comparative and Veterinary Biosciences at the Ohio State University in 2023. She now works as a Veterinary Clinical Pathologist at IDEXX and as a diagnostic clinical pathologist at an emergency and specialty hospital in RI.

Dr. Anne Staudenmaier: After completing a three-year residency in exotics at Angell, Dr. Staudenmaier worked in Chicago at a large exotics practice and several small zoos. Three years ago, she returned to Boston and now leads the MSPCA-Angell West Exotics service. Over the past year, Dr. Staudenmaier has had several pieces published in anthologies and magazines. When she's not at work or writing, she enjoys hiking with her Shih Tzu, whom she affectionately calls her "little gremlin."

Dr. Cara Steele

Dr. Cara Steele: Following her rotating internship in small animal medicine and surgery at Angell in 2016, Dr. Steele completed a small animal internal medicine residency at the University of Pennsylvania. She is now a board-certified internist practicing in the Maryland area.

Dr. Sarah Vidal

Dr. Sarah Vidal: Since leaving Angell, Dr. Vidal has been on the move. She started with an oncology specialty internship in San Diego, followed by a residency at UC Davis. After becoming board-certified, she worked in private practices in Las Vegas and San Diego. She's now happily settled just north of Atlanta (hopefully for good)! Sarah met her husband Luke in San Diego shortly after her time at Angell, and he's been her steady partner through every relocation. They now share a home with their beloved dog and cat.
